At least 350 languages are spoken in America.

We mind the language gap whenever it occurs. That means your case moves forward without a hitch. Language logistics solved. If you want to know more, just speak up.

A challenging, but not uncommon, situation in litigation is the language barrier. When there are multiple native languages and dialects, U.S. Legal Support can help. Our experienced, versatile team of interpreters can work with more than 200 languages, anywhere in the United States.

U.S. Legal Support has a team of over 3,000 interpreters fluent in a vast range of languages, including many dialects. A few of our more popular languages include Spanish, Mandarin, Italian, Russian, Japanese, Armenian, Tagalog, Urdu, Vietnamese, Korean, Farsi, and Creola. If human beings speak a language anywhere, one of our interpreters almost certainly speaks it, too.

Experience is the key

Interpreters are like pilots, or surgeons, or for that matter, attorneys — experience is everything. Our interpreters have a minimum of five years' legal experience, with state or Federal certification, depending on the venue. They are typically native speakers, and familiar with the subtleties and cultural elements of, say, Italy or Japan. Many of the interpreters we work with were professionals in their country of origin. We also can usually provide interpreters who are from the geographical region of a witness, if required. The Spanish spoken in East Los Angeles will be different than that of a Puerto Rican from New York. We can usually provide an interpreter with expertise in the slang, terminology and nuances of the witness's specific dialect.

Flexibility, expertise and versatility

Finally, the U.S. Legal Support Interpreting team can provide the flexibility, expertise and versatility your case may require. For example, many of the interpreters we work with have expertise as related to financial, intellectual property, medical and pharmaceutical content. If your matter involves a professional "language" as well a foreign one, our vast team of resources has an interpreter who can handle both. With sufficient advance notice, we can also ensure that the same interpreter is present throughout your entire case, insuring continuity.

More than 85 offices around the country

In litigation, an entire case can depend on a single sentence, or turn of phrase — maybe even a single word. When that word is not in English, you need interpreters who are experienced, professional, and have the skills and judgment your specific situation requires. You need the interpreters from U.S. Legal Support.
